

Caroline's Big Alaskan Run

All Proceeds to Benefit Children's Security Blanket

SPONSORSHIP FORM

So, what is the point of all of this running and fund raising?

As most of you know, I am a cancer mom. My heroic 5 year old son is battling cancer for the second time and, I might add, is defeating it in true warrior style! We have had friends and family support us in a way that is extraordinary. Without their unyielding support, I don't know how we would have made it through the last two years. In this journey, I have met many families who are not as fortunate as we. Hospital stays are long, jobs are lost, bills pile up.

Fortunately, there is a generous non-profit that exists to help support these families, reimbursing many of their expenses such as gas, groceries and more, and supporting the children with gifts, clothes and emotional support for the entire family. Large cancer research organizations receive the bulk of cancer fund raising efforts, but folks like Children's Security Blanket are on the front lines, affecting families immediately and directly, when they need it most.

In trying to heal our son, I have learned a lot about the benefits of nutrition and specific nutritional and holistic supplements used in addition to chemotherapy and radiation. I have decided to apply the healthy living that started with Aden to myself. So this year, I am taking on the challenge of living as a vegetarian for eleven months while training to run my first half marathon - all the way in Anchorage Alaska! I am blogging about my adventure at www.MyVegetarianYear.com. My goal is to improve the health of my family and do something I've never done before, in a place I've never been before, sharing the experience with as many people as I can while raising $500 per mile for Children's Security Blanket.

So, please have your business sponsor my run!

Donation levels are very modest, and personal as well as business donations are invited.

Here's how you stand to gain from helping me help others:

Press - The readers of my blog, and the recipients of my press releases, e-blasts and blog alerts are families, business associates, health nuts, runners, and folks battling cancer. So those are the types of folks who will see your logo presented on every blog entry, and every piece of press and correspondence that I put out.

A Free Website for your business - My business, Workhorse Creative (www.workhorsecreative.net) is renowned for outstanding websites - visit my weblink for detailed information. All contributors and sponsors, regardless of sponsorship level, will be entered into a drawing to win a free website and hosting for one year from Workhorse Creative. Details are online at www.WorkhorseCreative.net

Karma & Tax Deductions - Last but not least, improve your overall good karma, and of course, all donations are tax deductible!
